

This Game

The latest thing,
this game, it's incredible, so life-like you wouldn't believe, ingenious
to the millionth degree.
Honestly,
you'd never know isn't real.
Step right in,
adjust your eyes and there it is:
a whole wide world it seems,
with sky, and weather
mountains, oceans,
roads and streams,
not to mention,
throng of folk
each one unique, really,
you never know what they will say or do,
and sounds and textures,
even smells,
detailed incredibly these artists. They were thorough.
Look beneath each leaf,
each stone – you'll find an worm,
an earwig, that moves!
No blank bits
not even muffed bits.
Look behind that man's ear,
there's grease, there's hair, inside that fox-glove
the purple goes on
and on and if you dare, tilt back your head and fall right through the stars.
Beyond the stars
it just goes on and on eternity
could blow your mind
so careful, focus small,
see a bird, a bee
a butterfly.
How can it be?
This game, this craze,
